Tucker Carlson Tonight – Interview with Tucker Carlson and Omeed Malik

Fox News
February 27, 2023

Tucker Carlson: So ESG stands for environmental, social and governance. Massively popular on Wall Street, the idea is to use investment pressure to force countries to adopt a neoliberal agenda. And those principles destroy countries like Sri Lanka, which was pushed to abandon chemical fertilizer and people starved. So, how does the average investor get out of ESG? Well, Omeed Malik has created a way. He's Chairman and CEO of Colomblie Acquisition Corp. He joins us tonight. Omeed, thanks so much for coming on. If you're the average person and you don't want your money to go to destructive schemes that are anti-human, what options do you have?

Omeed Malik: Well, we all know the problem that Americans are sick and tired of buying from woke corporations that hate them. But the problem has been how do you set up an actual patriot economy if we can't find each other?

Tucker Carlson: Right.

Omeed Malik: Well, today, I'm proud to tell you that we have a solution and that is Colomblie, the company you just mentioned, that's a public company that I run that trades on the New York Stock Exchange, is taking a digital marketplace called PublicSq. public. You need an exchange to be the foundation of this economy, which will connect like-minded buyers and sellers in this patriot economy. So, what I'm proposing today is that we create the foundation of the economy that we all want and that you and I have described. The most exciting part of this, though, is how huge this market actually is.

Tucker Carlson: Right.

Omeed Malik: And that's something that's not really talked about. For the last 20 years, our corporations have gone to places like India and China to try and find demand. What if I were to tell you there's a market with over one hundred million people that represents the third largest economy by GDP, and it's right under our noses? Put differently, the last emerging market in the world is red America, and it is being actively ignored and alienated by our own corporations.

Tucker Carlson: So for the average person, and I'm pronouncing it correctly now, Colomblie investment, the average person can get involved in this directly without having to send money to some big investment firm that hates them and their values?

Omeed Malik: Yeah, and that's the beauty of why PublicSq., the digital app that we're taking public, wanted to do this. It's very important to them that they become a public company that just rank-and-file folks can go and buy and support the mission. And that's what we're most excited about, is the democratization of capital markets. And we need to do this, Tucker, because as we've discussed in the past, we are slouching towards social credit scores in this country. And so, we need to create this economy to insulate ourselves from that, because the battlefield for liberty will be around commerce, not just politics.

Tucker Carlson: That's exactly right. You can have all the opinions you want, but if all the money is on the other side, you're going to have to obey in the end. I think that's - I think that's absolutely right. Omeed Malik, I hope you will come back. Thank you for doing this. And great to see you.

Omeed Malik: My pleasure, Tucker, thank you.
